

Casteless Church: Dream or Possibility?

Philip Xavier Arul

Caste or Christ?

Past experiences teach us that material guarantees alone cannot create an egalitarian society. In addition, and even prior to them, concrete and continuous efforts with strong policies are needed to foster relational equality – encompassing human dignity, social respect, and solidarity. Christianity can help achieve this, as it profoundly believes in the equality of all humanity. This book explores why caste-based social divisions persist among Indian Christians, identifying three key causes of caste perpetuation. Furthermore, it argues theologically that promoting relational equality must precede distributive equality. Last but not least, it offers practicable pastoral steps to build an authentic relational Church rooted in God's Word. A valuable tool to help free individuals trapped by any form of “-ism”.

Religion

Born in Tamil Nadu, South India, Philip Xavier Arul – a Catholic priest for twenty-two years – is devoted to promoting relational equality within the Church in India. His sermons, writings, and personal interactions reflect his commitment to fostering human relationships beyond borders, rooted in the belief that authentic communion with others leads to communion with God.

Herausgegeben von François-Xavier Amherdt / Talitha Cooreman-Guittin / Regina M. Frey

Praktische Theologie im Dialog /
Théologie pratique en dialogue
Volume 70

Philip Xavier Arul

Caste or Christ?

A Christian Theological and
Pastoral Response to Promoting
Relational Equality

294 Seiten, E-Book

Open Access

ISBN 978-3-7965-5438-4

Erscheint im November 2025

Auch als Buch erhältlich

Schwabe Verlag Basel

[https://www.schwabe.ch/
9783796554377](https://www.schwabe.ch/9783796554377)